(2) LEARNING OUTCOMES

Learning Outcomes

The course learning outcomes, specific knowledge, skills and competences of an appropriate (certain) level, which students will acquire upon successful completion of the course, are described in detail.

It is necessary to consult:

APPENDIX A

- Description of the level of learning outcomes for each level of study, in accordance with the European Higher Education Qualifications' Framework.
- Descriptive indicators for Levels 6, 7 & 8 of the European Qualifications Framework for Lifelong Learning and

APPENDIX B

- Guidelines for writing Learning Outcomes

The course explores the role of Destination Management and Marketing Organisations (DMMOs), enabling students to understand how strategic marketing supports destination development. It highlights how marketing fosters sustainable tourism and stakeholder alignment.

Students assess the impacts of tourism (economic, cultural, environmental) and explore sustainability, stakeholder interaction, and trends like smart destinations, demonstrating alignment with dynamic marketing environments.

The syllabus includes visitor preferences, stakeholder experience, and tourism demand analysis, directly examining factors affecting traveller behaviour in a destination context.

Students are taught how to compose strategic marketing plans, including destination product development and destination branding, addressing the entire planning process.

Case studies, strategy formulation exercises, and planning tools are embedded in the course content, teaching students how to implement and evaluate marketing strategies for destinations.

After completing the course students are expected to be able to:

- Analyze the tourism system at the level of tourist destinations and the main participants (stakeholders) that make it up.
- Assess the economic, cultural, social and environmental impacts of the tourism phenomenon on a destination.
- Acknowledge the life cycle stages of tourism destinations.
- Recognize and distinguish the importance of all variables of the Marketing mix at the level of tourist destinations. <ul style="list-style-type: none"> • Understand the complex concept of destination branding. • Propose strategic marketing management models for all participants of a destination. • Compose strategic marketing plans for the sustainable tourism development of a destination.

(3) COURSE CONTENT

This course examines the strategic role of marketing in the sustainable development and competitiveness of tourism destinations, with a focus on the functions and responsibilities of Destination Management and Marketing Organisations (DMMOs). Students explore how destination marketing fosters stakeholder collaboration, enhances visitor experiences, and supports long-term value creation in increasingly complex and dynamic tourism environments.

Through the lens of strategic marketing, the course addresses critical issues such as tourism's economic, cultural, and environmental impacts, the integration of sustainability principles, and the emergence of smart destinations. Emphasis is placed on understanding tourism demand, traveler behavior, and stakeholder expectations, enabling students to design marketing strategies that are both market-responsive and context-sensitive.

Students are trained in the full destination marketing planning process—from market research and product development to branding, positioning, and communication strategy. Practical exercises in strategy formulation, scenario planning, and performance evaluation are supported by real-world case studies that demonstrate how destination marketing can balance competitiveness with responsibility.

By the end of the course, students will be equipped to develop and implement strategic marketing plans that align diverse stakeholder interests, adapt to market trends, and reinforce the sustainable positioning of tourism destinations.
